Dear Bob:

The visit to China Lake was a huge success and we would like to thank you and Alan Alpers and all the others who worked so hard to make it so. I believe that by now we know more about "banding" than any of us want to (having heard it discussed by virtually every speaker during the five weeks of the course), but it was particularly helpful to hear your candid evaluation based upon seven years of experience with the Demonstration Project.

I told you that by the final day of the course the students would want to get around a little at NWC and "kick some tires." That proved to be exactly the case. Most commented quite favorably on the base tours and came back with ideas on how to improve the interface between their research and some of your projects. It was a healthy dialogue.

Please stop by for a visit if you are in Washington.
